IMPORTANT LINKS:

1. BASE (<https://www.base-search.net/>): BASE is one of the world's most voluminous search engines especially for academic web resources. The index contains more than 400 million records from more than 11,000 content providers. You can access the full texts of about 60% of the indexed records for free (Open Access). BASE is operated by Bielefeld University Library.
2. Open Knowledge Repository- World Bank (<https://openknowledge.worldbank.org/>): The World Bank is the largest single source of development knowledge. The World Bank Open Knowledge Repository (OKR) is the official open access repository for its research outputs and knowledge products of the World Bank. The Open Access Policy and the OKR represent the third major development in the World Bank's Open Development Agenda, joining these earlier initiatives:
Open Data Initiative (launched in April 2010): a range of reforms enabling free access to thousands of development indicators, as well as a wealth of information on World Bank project and finance, and Access to Information Policy (launched in July 2010): a groundbreaking change in how the World Bank makes information available to the public.
By extending and improving access to World Bank research, the World Bank aims to encourage innovation and allow anyone in the world to use Bank knowledge to help improve the lives of those living in poverty. The OKR is constantly updated with new content, as well as legacy reports and research.
