Urkund: Anti-plagiarism Software

(<http://www.orkund.com>)

Introduction

URKUND (Anti-plagiarism software) is a completely automated system to check plagiarism and is being successfully used at universities and colleges all around the world. URKUND's system checks submitted documents against three central source areas:

- The Internet
- Published material such as journals, books etc.
- Previously submitted student material/ archive (e.g. memoranda, case studies and examination works)

Create an Urkund User Account

Teachers: Apply directly to Urkund by sending an e-mail to the customer support [<http://www.orkund.com/en/support>] requesting for an account. State your name, the name of your educational organization and your work-email. The support staff will create an account for you and send a registration confirmation OR send a request to ncsaha.72@gmail.com stating your name, the name of your department and your work-email.

You will receive a mail from Urkund asking to activate the account. Activate it by clicking on the link provided by Urkund. The link may be found in the bottom part of the mail under 'Additional functionality ----'(NB: Your Analysis Address which will look like ---vbuni@analysis.orkund.com is your account)

Students: Go to <http://www.orkund.com>, click on 'Log in', then on 'Log in the Urkund system', click on 'Create account for document upload (Students)'. Go ahead and create the account.

How does Urkund work

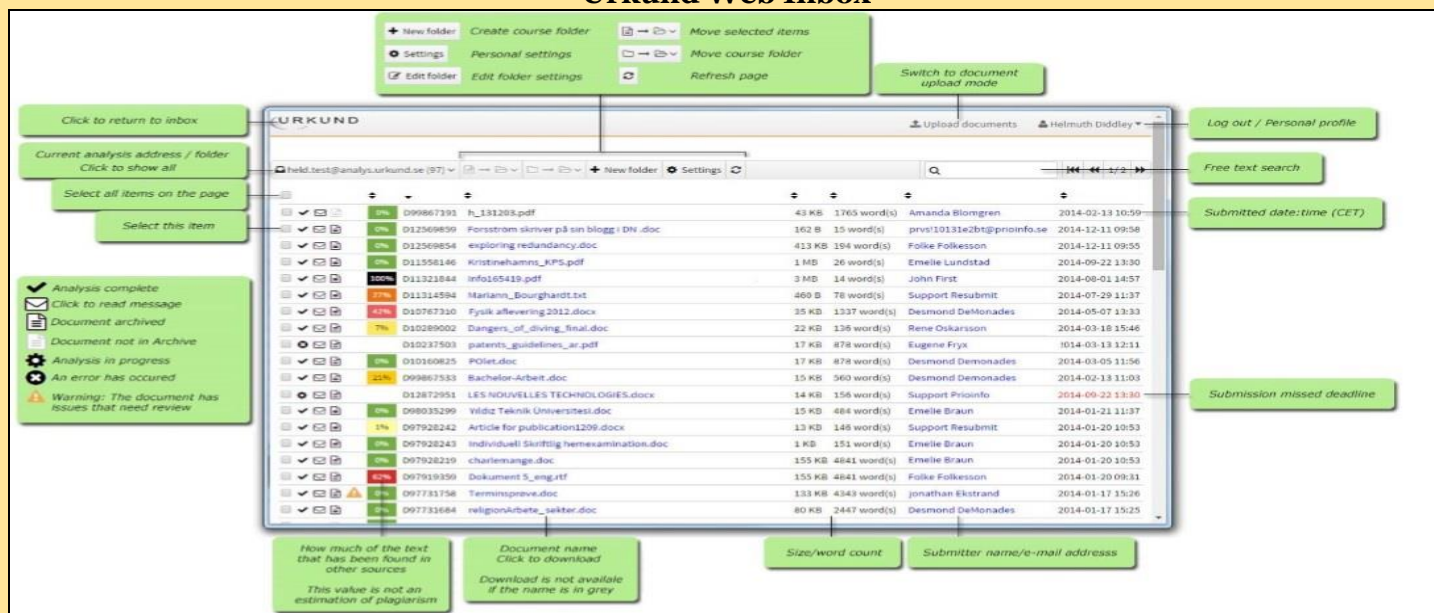

Students: Send documents via e-mail to teachers' analysis address /web upload to teachers' analysis address (eg:vbuni@analysis.orkund.com) OR teachers upload students' documents to their web box.

Teachers: Web uploaded the article to one's analysis address. (see 'Web Inbox' below)

Urkund: When the documents arrive at Urkund, they are analysed against the content of three source areas: the Internet, Published Materials and Student Materials. Generated reports are provided to the teachers concerned.

The Teachers: Evaluate the documents.

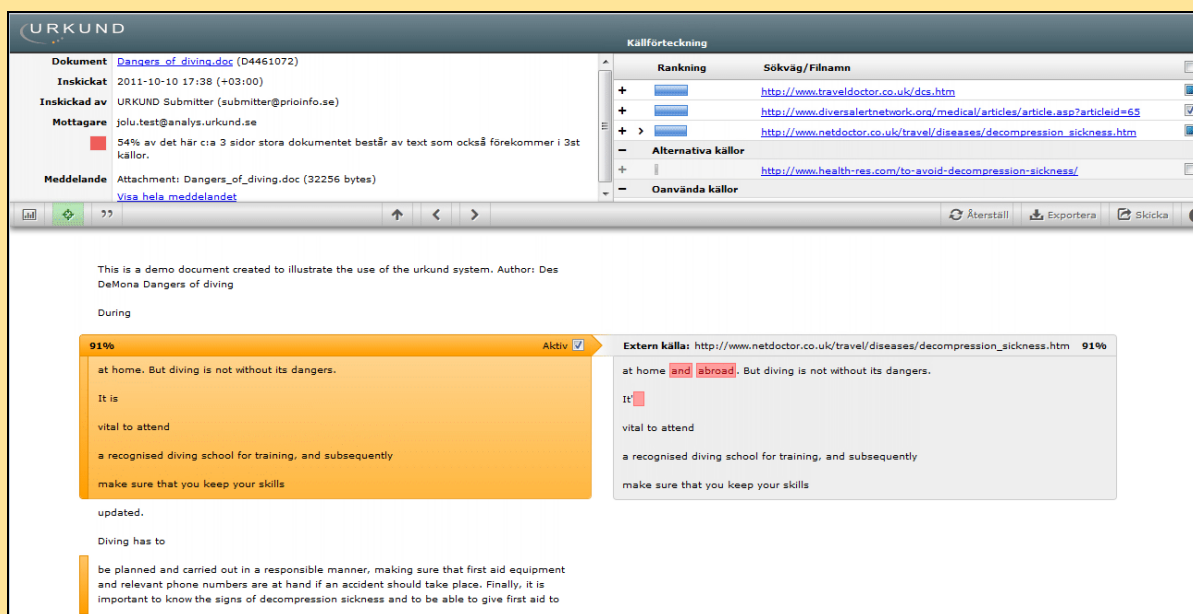

Urkund Web Inbox

The Report

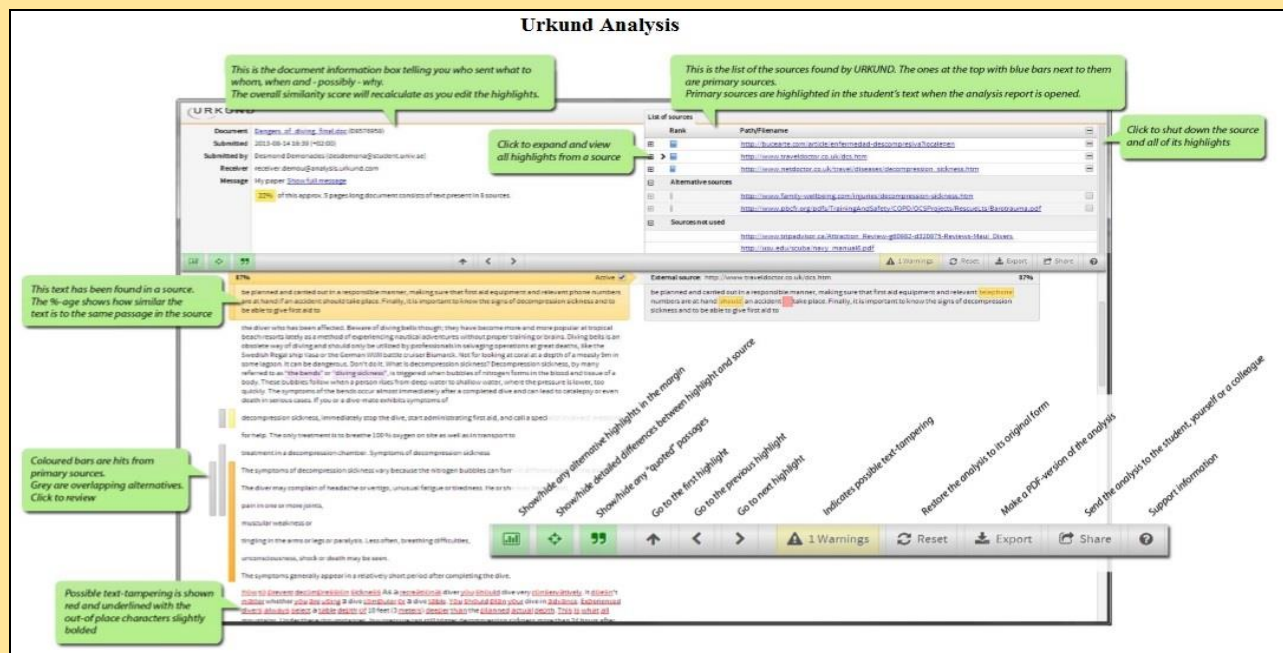

When a teacher/student submits a document for analysis to Urkund via the Urkund analysis address, the report is generated and sent to the teacher via an e-mail link to the online report. Also, it is deposited in the web inbox.

The report will include the percentage of equivalence between the document and the available databases

Analysis

In the report view, the submitted document will appear on the left side of the screen while the relevant source material will appear on the right. Both texts are clearly marked (equivalence percentage, colour highlights), indicating which parts one should focus on. Compare the highlighted segments with the sources provided. By clicking on the source link, you will see how the text was written in the source. Red areas in the source material indicate how the text has been edited, for example, words omitted from the inspected document will be highlighted.

Review

An “Active” window is displayed for each similarity found, so that the teacher may either disregard the similarity (by inactivating by clicking on ‘Active’. The percentage will change according to the teacher’s selections) or accept it for inclusion in the final report. The report can also be saved as a PDF document from Urkund and sent to the student via email. There is a provision to share the analysis.

NB: URKUND never determines what plagiarism is, but Urkund compares textual similarity and subject similarity. Urkund marks your documents that are similar to other sources, and gives the teacher access to the original material where Urkund have found the similarity.
